BERKELEY

Contemporary style with functionality defines the Berkeley Dining collection. This expandable table features dual seamless pocket butterfly systems, making this table perfect for small spaces that can quickly be expanded to accommodate up to ten guests comfortably. The rich Coffee finish adds elegance to the dining room, which is elevated in the functional server featuring ample storage options. The angular design of the wood chair gives a modern touch, while the upholstered chair lends an air of elegance.

CORTEZ

The Mission style receives a modern update in the Cortez Dining collection. Classic slanted lines exemplify the motif, with thick legs and angled braces that embrace this style of furniture. Design details include channeling along the legs and decorative corbel supports on the table and server. A rich Saddle Brown finish accentuates the beauty of the solid mahogany wood and is beautifully paired with matte black hardware. There are plenty of storage options found in the server, with soft close drawers and doors.

SILVERDALE

Make a statement with the stunning beauty of mango wood with the Silverdale Dining collection. The simple transitional style of this collection allows the tiger striping unique to mango to be the focal point, drawn out by the Russet finish. The curved edges of the table and server top beautifully complement the construction details, like the exposed wood dowels where the table apron joins each leg. The server includes many unique features such as stemware racks and flippable wine shelves. Both chair styles feature elegant steam bent slats to maximize comfort and provide lumbar support.

SKYLER

The Skyler Dining collection has a subtle yet distinctive modern style that isn't overpowering. Clean lines are balanced with the intriguing soft concave curve on the sides of each piece in this collection, highlighting the craftsmanship and attention to detail. Elevate your entertainment status when opening the pocket doors on the bar cabinet, revealing a drop leaf shelf and both stemware and bottle storage. Give your décor more of an edge with the woven leather back chair, or soften the look with the upholstered parson chair.

CORVALLIS

The Corvallis Occasional group gives a contemporary upgrade to classic styling, where the focus is the natural beauty of the walnut wood. All pieces of this collection have beveled framing with 45 degree mitered corners, along with elegantly tapered legs to provide additional strength and stability. The true highlight lies in the use of walnut, allowing its natural beauty to take center stage.

STORMY RIDGE

The Langley Occasional group makes your family and guests feel right at home with its practical farmhouse style. Door fronts feature x-shaped detailing to enhance the hospitable warmth of this collection. Pronounced distressing in the chicory finish of the tops and drawer pulls gives the look of time-worn wood that is contrasted by the soft, slate black finish. This group was designed with functionality in mind, from the slide open doors on the 66 inch media console to the lift top coffee table which opens to reveal even more storage space beneath the top while providing a higher surface when needed.

FEATURES & BENEFITS

SELF STORING LEAF

Refers to any style of table that allows for the leaf to be safely stored inside of the table when not in use.

STEMWARE RACK

Store and protect your wine glasses and other stemware with this space saving rack with easy accessibility.

FELT LINED TOP DRAWERS

The felt protects the contents of the drawer from snags or splinters, and the soft surface keeps contents from shifting as drawers are opened and closed.

ENGLISH DOVETAIL

The strongest of all joints used in drawer corner construction with interlocking corners. This type of joint resists being pulled apart, looks attractive, and adds strength and stability to the drawer.

REMOVABLE SILVERWARE TRAY

Keep your silverware organized with the removable silverware tray found in the top drawer of servers and/or buffets. The felt lining of the tray keeps your silverware in place when opening and closing the drawer.

CORD MANAGEMENT

Reduce cable clutter by organizing power cords for your electronics. All of our nightstands include a cord management system that allows you to hide all your charging cords while still allowing easy access to your charger.

CASTERS

Easily move your furniture pieces when and where you want with these sturdy locking casters.

USB CHARGING

Easily recharge your phone, tablet or other electronic devices.

PIRELLI WEBBING

Pirelli Webbed Seats provide substantially more support and comfort for sitting, with added durability over time to prevent sagging.

BEVELED MIRROR

A beveled mirror brings a luxurious and upbeat feel to any room. The beveled edge is often considered safer because they are polished to a smooth finish.

EXTENDABLE CLOTHING BAR

Also referred to as a Valet Pull, these extendable clothing bars conveniently pull it out from our chests to hang your clothes or other items.

SELF STORING BUTTERFLY LEAF

Perhaps the easiest ways to extend the length of your table, storage included! One person can extend the table open by their self, then pull out the folded leaves from inside just like a butterfly spreading it's wings.

REMOVABLE LEAVES

Larger tables that require the leaf to be stored separately from the table, meaning that the table does not store the leaf.

WINE RACK

A place to conveniently store your favorite wine and other beverages of choice with style while keeping things organized.

REMOVABLE WINE RACK

Just in case you don't need to have storage for bottles, our wine racks can be easily removed to provide more storage space to fit your needs.

FRENCH DOVETAIL

The French Dovetail joint is a sliding joint and is often used with a curved or bowed design and is a very strong looking joint.

GEAR GLIDES

Ratchet gear gliding system is an easy way to make opening and closing your table a one-person job. Easier to slide than wooden slides and are often compatible with self storing leaves.

EQUALIZING CABLE GLIDES

The cable system allows for one person to open the table in both directions at the same time. Effortlessly expand the table single handed to add more table space. Generally found on tables with trestle bases or more than four legs.

HIDDEN/SECRET DRAWER

Keep your most prized possessions safe and secure (with easy access!) by storing them in a hidden drawer.

FULL EXTENSION GLIDES

Allows drawer to open the full length of the slide, meaning the drawers open further to provide more access inside of the drawer.

DROP LEAF

A drop leaf table has hinged leaves on each end of the table to extend the tables length. The leaves are "stored" when folded down and out of the way.

CEDAR LINED DRAWERS

Using cedar in drawer construction helps remove moisture from the air and preventing mildew, while maintaining a fresh smell and is also a natural bug repellent.

WOOD GLIDES

The original table slide - simple, strong, and allows the table sections to extend out the farthest. The slides work like an accordion, with one section sliding in and out of the neighboring section.

ADJUSTABLE/REMOVABLE SHELVES

Create the storage solution that fits your needs with the easily adjustable shelving that can also be completely removed for larger items.

PULL OUT TRAY

Need more storage space? Add more surface area by pulling out these convenient and very sturdy storage trays.

HI-LO CONVERTIBLE TABLE

A convertible table with adjustable height so that it can be used at the traditional dining height (30 inches) or gathering height (36 inches).

REMOVABLE JEWELRY TRAY

A removable felt lined jewelry tray is a convenient way to store your valuables, keeping them organized and from shifting when opening and closing the drawer.

FLIP DOWN DRAWER FRONT

An easy way to open your drawers using a flip down drawer front - simply pull the front of the drawer down to open, allowing for complete access to your belongings from the front.

BALL BEARING GLIDES

Allows the smoothest opening and closing action for expanding tables. This type of glide makes opening a table by yourself effortless. Simply hold onto one end of the table and pull it open easily, revealing the self storing leaves below.

CARING FOR SOLID WOOD

- Clean surfaces using a soft cloth dampened with water
- Avoid using wax and/or silicone based cleaners or polishes
- Use padding to help protect the wood and finish. Hot and cold items should not be placed directly onto surfaces
- Spills should be wiped clean as quickly as possible
- Store table leaves flat in the same room
- Avoid placing furniture in close proximity to heaters and fireplaces

Organic solid wood products will consistently balance themselves with their local environmental conditions. To avoid excessive warping or cracking issues, maintain an environment at or around 70° Fahrenheit with relative humidity between 40% to 50%. Proper ventilation and air current is recommended for all solid wood products. Any adjustment to room temperature should be made gradually. Drastic changes to environmental conditions are extremely stressing to wood in general. Excess heat and dryness can cause potential cracking and/or splitting. Using a humidifier is a great tool to protect your solid wood investment. Product should be kept away from direct heat sources such as a fireplace, in floor heating, etc.

Solid wood will expand and contract with temperature and humidity changes. This movement is normal and appears as "checking" (small surface cracks) and does not affect the structural integrity of this piece. Wood and lacquers will naturally darken (or amber) over time. To help minimize this effect, furniture should not be exposed to direct sunlight for prolonged periods of time. If direct sunlight cannot be avoided, it is recommended to rotate the piece(s) periodically to even exposure.

WOOD GUIDE

When you buy furniture from A-America, you are making a responsible decision to maintain a healthier planet. The solid hardwoods and time-tested craftsmanship used to build your furniture ensure premium quality, luxury and durability. You can relax knowing that both your new solid wood furniture pieces and the forests which produce the wood will be around to enjoy for generations.

American Hardwoods such as alder, ash, oak, cherry and hickory reproduce prolifically. Currently nearly twice as much hardwood grows each year than is harvested, which is why in the last 50 years the volume of hardwood in U.S. forests has doubled. American foresters follow a simple rule: on-going replenishment equals a sustained supply. Hardwood trees are grown through a process patented by nature. They're not mined or created through a chemically intense man-made process.

Trees use the power of sunlight to separate carbon dioxide into carbon and oxygen atoms. The carbon is used to grow roots, trunk, branches, and leaves, while the oxygen is released to enrich the air. After a tree is harvested a very small amount of energy is needed to turn it into lumber or other wood products.

With growing concern for our environment and the deforestation of the rain forests around the world, it is significant to inform our customers that none of the wood used in the crafting of our furniture stems from the Indonesian rain forest. The farmers carefully grow the trees in distinctive patterns, each field displaying trees in various stages of growth. Once the mature trees are harvested, the fields are re-seeded to maintain a healthy reforestation. The government controls and regulates all wood cuttings. Our Asian hardwood, mahogany and New Zealand pine are plantation grown and are also legally harvested and certified and controlled under the Lacey Act standards.

Acacia wood is one of the best quality woods for furniture making. Renowned for having a diverse population, is found on almost all continents. We source this wood from plantations in Vietnam, which makes it an environmentally sound and sustainable choice. The look of this wood is incredibly versatile, ranging from yellow to weathered gray and even a darker cherry when cut closer to the heartwood, or center of the wood. Not only does it have beautiful coloration (which when finished can go from light to dark) but it's also extra durable. This durability and strength properties are bolstered by it's fine grain, rot and scratch resistance.

ACACIA

Birch is a hardwood that is extremely strong and durable, making it a great choice for solid hardwood furniture. Birch wood has a beautiful appearance, with a fine grain and pale coloring which gives it an elegant look for clean line furniture designs. In recent years, solid birch has been finished in dark espresso color because the heavy density of the lumber makes it harder to dent and scratch, therefore keeping it looking new for an extended period of time. Birch trees used for furniture are traditionally harvested from the colder climates found in Northern Europe and Russia.

BIRCH

A-America is proud to claim to be the only manufacturer who has successfully produced and imported solid hickory furniture. Hickory is part of the pecan and walnut family and is usually from the Pennsylvania region. Hickory wood is very hard, stiff, dense and shock resistant and an extremely difficult material to use in building furniture. There are woods that are stronger than hickory and woods that are harder, but the combination of strength, toughness, hardness, and stiffness found in hickory wood is not found in any other commercial wood. Only the most experienced craftsman can produce beautiful, stylish hickory furniture. Amish style furniture is typically made from hickory.

HICKORY

Alder has been used in many ways throughout history. Common alder is a member of the birch family, yet the fine, even texture of alder wood makes it similar to cherry. We often refer alder as the "poor man's cherry" because of its beauty and affordability. Its appearance and high quality make it a popular choice for furniture and cabinets. Red alder grown in the Pacific Northwest is medium in density and is the preferred specie used to build furniture. Alder trees are a gift from Mother Nature since they replant themselves in the forest by dropping its cones.

ALDER

Mahogany is a medium density wood that has color variances combining white, pink, peach, gray and brown wood tones to create a more exotic look with stunning with unique patterns that adds character to your home. Compared to oak and maple, mahogany is relatively light weight and is easier to mill and cut than most other hardwoods. Mahogany is a popular choice for both indoor and outdoor uses because it is dimensionally stable, resistant to rot, humidity and insects. Because mahogany can grow to immense sizes, this wood produces thick, wide and long wood that is perfect for making larger pieces of furniture.

MAHAGONY

Red Maple, which is also called Soft Maple, is a medium-high density wood, from deciduous trees in eastern North America. Soft maple takes any finish colors well, though like all maple, its grain and color varies from white to gray tones with mineral deposits. These natural wood characteristics are becoming more and more sought after because it adds an "organic" feel to furniture. Soft maple can be mixed in production of furniture with birch wood to create a better value.

MAPLE

Solid Wood ~ Artfully Crafted

Pine is a light weight, straight grained soft wood usually white or pale yellow in color. Because pine is an evergreen, it is technically considered a softwood but in fact is a very stiff. It's durability and strength makes it an excellent option for building furniture and naturally resists shrinking and swelling. Pine is also one of the few softwoods that is produced like a hardwood and is a popular choice for furniture makers because it's so easy to work with, versatile, and takes stains and finishes very easily.

PINE

Solid Asian Hardwoods are primary milled from rubberwood trees which are plantation grown and responsibly harvested in Southeast Asia. Trees are cut down once they have aged and have completed their latex sap production cycle. Amazingly, the rubber wood tree species is fast-growing yet also very high in density and provides a hard wood material which is excellent for furniture production. Today, the most well-known American furniture brands use solid Asian hardwoods because of its durability and can be finished into beautiful high-end looks.

ASIAN HARDWOOD

Derived from the Latin "Populus" because the trees were routinely planted in public spaces or near people, or the "populus." It provides an excellent surface for painting and a variety of finishes. A-America uses poplar to add structural integrity to our furniture. It is found throughout the Northern Hemisphere and is commonly referred to in North America as the beautiful Tulip Tree. The genus also includes aspen and cottonwood. Poplar grows best around bodies of water and can be easily farmed, making it another environmentally positive choice.

POPLAR

Yes, the very same trees that produce delicious mango fruits also produce beautiful wood after the fruit has been harvested! Often referred to as the "affordable" teak alternative, mango trees are fast growing from Southeast Asia and the ideal substitution for endangered species like teak. Mango wood has unique "tiger" stripes and multitudes of grain and color variations while also naturally repelling water. It is a hard wood which will provide durability even with everyday usage and does not require extensive processing, seasoning nor drying which is better for the environment. Mango lumber is best used in a rustic finish and craftsman designs. It is easy to love this beautiful, exotic wood that is also an affordable value.

MANGO

Beautiful solid oak wood adapts well in a wide range of light to dark finishes to create modern or traditional designs. Oak is durable and long lasting because oak trees take their time to grow slowly to produce high density material. It is no wonder that some of the most treasured American antiques are made of oak. If fact with proper care, you can continue using this oak furniture for even a century so what you buy today will be your children and even grandchildren's heirlooms. Oak is known to be scratch, stain and dust resistance making it easier to maintain and clean when compared to other woods.

OAK

Walnut is prized by woodworkers for its strength, tight grain, and beautiful colors ranging from a creamy white in the sapwood to a dark chocolate in the heartwood. Over the years, natural walnut wood develops a lustrous patina and polishes to a very smooth finish. Walnut trees are monoecious, meaning a single tree contains both male (catkin) and female (pistillate) flowers, allowing the trees to self pollinate.

WALNUT

WOOD HARDNESS

The hardness of wood is measured using the Janka Scale, developed by Austrian born American researcher Gabriel Janka and was standardized by the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) in 1927. The scale ranges from 0 to 4000 where the higher the rating on the scale, the more durable and wear resistant the wood is. The lower the number on the scale, the more susceptible the wood is to dents and scratches.

The test measures the force required to embed a 7/16 inch (11.29mm) steel ball halfway into the wood sample. The Janka test always uses wood samples taken from the trunk (heartwood) of the tree with a 12% moisture content and free from knots.

Softer woods such as balsa have a rating of 70, where some of the hardest woods like Australian Buloke have a Janka rating near 4000. A species of wood that measures 1000 on the Janka scale requires 1000 pounds of force to embed the steel ball halfway into the wood. The number is a statistical average for that species of wood.

The hardness of wood is not indicative of its strength. The hardness serves only as an indicator of how well the wood will withstand day to day wear and tear, not how strong the wood is.

This chart lists the Janka ratings for A-America's woods used in our products.

50 YEARS A-AMERICA®

Our Story

1973

Brothers, Fred and John Rohrbach, graduates of the University of Montana had worked as Smokejumpers with the U.S. Forest Service based out of Missoula, Montana.

1973

In the early 1970s they decided to give up jumping out of airplanes to fight forest fires and start a business exporting ceramic items from Vietnam. They named their business Asia-America Trading Company.

1975

Starting with very little capital, Fred lived in Saigon and did the sourcing and buying while John lived in Seattle handling the marketing and sales.

The brothers decided to import antique reproductions from Taiwan, such as oak tables, press back chairs, cast iron toys and western style brass lamps. When John discovered an oak arrow back chair in an Idaho antique store, they had it copied in Taiwan using North American Oak and becoming one of the first companies exporting US hardwoods to Taiwan to be made into furniture.

1979

Fred has travelled numerous times to Vietnam, starting in 1979 and throughout the 1980s when it was difficult for Americans to travel to Vietnam as there were no diplomatic relations between Vietnam and the United States.

1990s

As the market changed over the years, the brothers were selling primarily furniture by the early 1990s. Along the way the company changed their name to A-America.

1990s

A-America began working exclusively with manufacturers in Taiwan to create furniture from Red Oak, while expanding Rubberwood production in Malaysia.

1996

A-America opens it's first showroom at the International Home Furnishings Market in the Centers of High Point, High Point, North Carolina.

1999

A-America registers the domain a-america.com.

2005

Amish Highlands Bedroom crafted from North American Hickory debuts.

2007

Vers-A-Table introduced with the Montreal Dining Collection

2011

Toluca Dining Collection expands the Vers-A-Table line.

2015

Anacortes Dining, made from Salvaged Mahogany, is introduced to the furniture marketplace

2016

US Patent #D845,048S issued for A-America's Drop Leaf Table.

2017

Glacier Point Bedroom, crafted from New Zealand Pine, and quickly becomes A-America's best selling bedroom collections.

2019

The Sun Valley Bedroom collection introduces the rotating storage bed.

2021

Production of the Beacon Dining Collection begins.

2023

A-America reaches 50 years in the industry.

Today A-America works with factories around the world in crafting solid wood furniture.
